CARRIE ANNE VANDERHOOP is from a lineage of Hai weavers—the daughter of Evelyn Vanderhoop and the granddaughter of Delores Churchill from the Gawa Git’ans Massett Inlet Eagle Clan of Old Massett. Her father, David Vanderhoop, is Aquinnah Wampanoag from Neope, commonly known as Martha’s Vineyard, Massachusetts, where she grew up. She now lives on Haida Gwaii. As an educator, Carrie Anne hopes this book will foster in young people a connection with our natural world—the forests, the ocean and the seashore—and respect for the original stewards of the land, the first peoples of Turtle Island.

MANGESHIG PAWIS-STECKLEY is an Anishinaabe artist and a member of the Wasauksing First Nation. He has illustrated numerous children’s books, including Boozhoo!/Hello! and The Trickster Shadow. His work has garnered many honors, such as the Ruth and Sylvia Schwartz Children’s Book Award, the Indigenous Voices Award, and the Blue Spruce Award. Mangeshig currently resides on the unceded lands of the Musqueam, Squamish, and Tsleil-Waututh peoples in Vancouver, BC.

In Wampanoag Seasons: Seeqan, Neepun, Keepun, Pupoon, a young Wampanoag child takes readers on a seasonal journey through Aquinnah, on Neope, known as Martha’s Vineyard. Spring brings the return of wildlife; summer brings beach adventures and clambakes; fall is for harvesting and making jams; and winter features cozy gatherings and heartfelt traditions. Each season showcases the rich cultural heritage of the Wampanoag people. With striking illustrations and lyrical prose, this book is about an appreciation of the land and the joy of coming together with family and community all year round.

With humour and a touch of poetry, this picture book features a sailor named Lalo, and Rosa, a goldfish, dealing with the pollution caused by plastic water bottles. Lalo wants to find a safe and clean place for his fish friend, but everywhere they go has been invaded by plastic water bottles.

REVIEWS

“Pairing understated text with satiric line drawings, (SOS Water) highlights the serious ecological and societal harm caused by single-use containers . . . (and) is a crystal-clear clarion call to action.”

—STARRED REVIEW QUILL AND QUIRE ★

“With a light touch in both text and illustrations, Yayo deals with a most serious subject – the water pollution being caused by discarded single-use plastic water bottles . . . Its environmental message (will) resonate with youngsters.”

Highly Recommended

—CM: CANADIAN REVIEW OF MATERIALS

“Yayo blends attractive visuals, a sense of whimsy, and sound lessons on environmentalism . . . (creating) a fanciful tale with practical guidance for protecting our planet.”

—KIRKUS REVIEWS

“SOS Water is an imaginative, inventive and provocative picture book that not only tells an engaging story with simple but thoughtfully poetic text and playfully humorous illustrations, but also addresses the climate crisis in a way that’s accessible to children of all ages.”

In this vibrant and exquisitely illustrated picture book by Jamaican-Canadian writer Olive Senior and acclaimed artist Laura James (the team that created the best-selling Anna Carries Water), a young girl learns to love her difficult-to-manage voluminous and Boonoonoonous Hair.

REVIEWS

"The energy between mother and child is infectious, and the rhythmic text is great fun to read. This girl's road to self-acceptance is playful, easy, and filled with love."

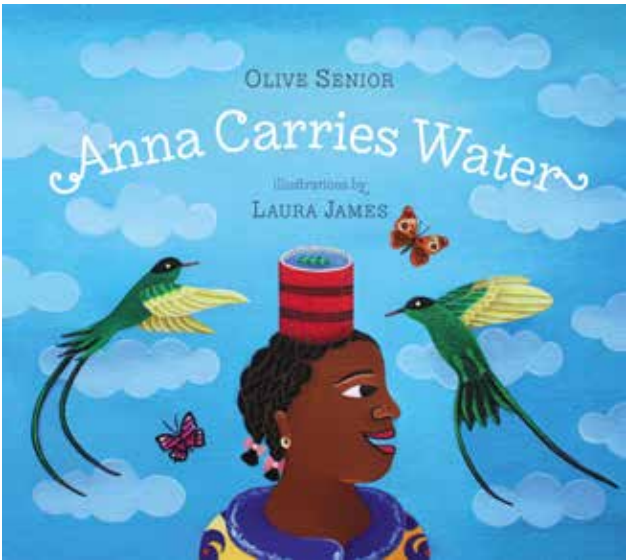

—KIRKUS REVIEWS

"The artwork by James — who is of Antiguan heritage — is an explosion of colour and energy, with each one of her illustrations perfectly echoing the vibrancy of Jamilla's ever-changing electric and kinetic hairstyles. Together, author and illustrator show young readers that being different isn't a bad thing."

—QUILL & QUIRE

"It is a beautiful ode to all that makes us different yet special. Accompanied by bold and colourful illustrations, this picture book would be a great addition to any children's collection."

Anna fetches water from the spring every day, but she can't carry it on her head like her older brothers and sisters. This charming and poetic family story set in Jamaica shows young readers the power of determination, as Anna achieves her goal and overcomes her fear.

REVIEWS

"Tropical colors sprawl across wide double-page spreads of lush Caribbean landscapes."

—KIRKUS REVIEWS

"James's vibrant paintings will capture readers' eyes. Little details will enable children to realize those in other parts of the world aren't as dissimilar as they might believe."

—SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL

"A gentle story about growing up. James's stunning illustrations capture the beauty and colour of the Jamaican landscape, as well as the warmth of Anna's family. Anna's triumph will delight young readers."

—QUILL & QUIRE

Kate is upset when her Bubbie (grandma) gets a motorized scooter. Will Bubbie still be Bubbie in that scooter?

REVIEWS

“Bonnie has been vocal about climate change alongside her children, activist authors Seth Klein and Naomi Klein. And this fall, she’s incorporated feminism, disability rights, and environmentalism into a kids’ book, Beep Beep Bubbie (Tradewind Books). Despite the heavy issues, the picture book—with illustrations by Élisabeth Eudes-Pascal—is all fun.”

—INTERVIEW WITH QUILL & QUIRE

“The illustrations by Élisabeth Eudes-Pascal are wonderfully colourful and fun; full of energy and movement.”

—THE JEWISH INDEPENDANT

“This beautifully illustrated children’s book teaches important lessons about living with disability.”

—VANCOUVER SUN

“Beep Beep Bubbie is a thoroughly charming picture book entertainment for children and especially recommended as an enduringly popular addition to family, daycare center, preschool, elementary school, and community library collections.”

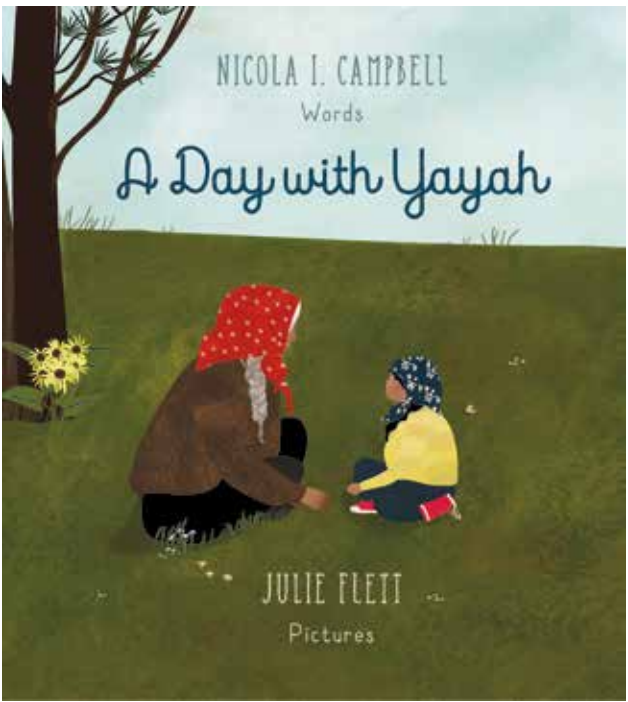

—THE MIDWEST BOOK REVIEW

“Few authors of juvenile books have overcome such odds as Bonnie Sherr Klein. Her own struggle is reflected in Beep Beep Bubbie, where she demonstrates that a grandma on a scooter can be as much fun as one walking. Montreal artist Elisabeth Eudes-Pascal’s attractive and humorous illustrations add to the picture book’s appeal.”

Set in the Nicola Valley, BC, a First Nations family goes on an outing to forage for herbs and mushrooms. A grand mother passes down her knowledge of plant life and the natural world to her young grandchildren.

REVIEWS

“By using a story about family and nature as a conduit to share Nle’kepmxcin, Campbell nimbly proves how the way we speak is intertwined with the rest of one’s life, and why it is essential to preserve Indigenous languages with a new generation.”

—THE GLOBE & MAIL

“Campbell and Flett present the power of practicing Indigenous traditions and family values – for shaping strong, patient, smart, and loving characteristics in children. . . The distinct and unbreakable resiliency of Indigenous people is affirmed in this loving portrait of generational courage and fortitude.”

—QUILL & QUIRE

“Flett’s lovely collages add beauty (to) this cheerful story of a spring-day outing . . . Timeless values, such as gratitude for the earth, are seamlessly integrated.”

—BOOKLIST REVIEWS

Cardboard City follows the lives of two young teens—members of a Romani family. Saida and Nikola experience harsh discrimination at school and crushing poverty in their informal settlement, spread out under a bridge in Belgrade. Their dreams of escape, and of leaving deplorable conditions behind, trigger a family crisis. In particular, Nikola is a gifted trumpeter and aspires to be a famous musician; but it proves challenging to surmount the enormous barriers between his present situation and the self-mastery and life of dignity he seeks.

Introducing young readers to the world of Eastern Europe's Rom, Cardboard City is evocative of the virulent racism, injustice and inhumane conditions endured by this community to this very day.

Written from the points-of-view of four young people living in Johannesburg and its black township, Soweto, this book explores the roots of the 1976 Soweto Uprising.

Introducing young adult readers to a remarkable new literary talent, When Morning Comes combines deeply compelling storytelling with a searing picture of South African society on the eve of the student-led uprising that changed it forever.

REVIEWS

A riveting and accomplished debut.

This moving novel of self-discovery takes place during the Oka crisis in the summer of 1990. Adopted as an infant, Carrie has always felt somehow out of place, and recurring dreams haunt her. When she finds out that her birth father is Mohawk, living in Kahnawake, Quebec, she makes the journey and finally achieves a sense of home and belonging, which previously eluded her.

REVIEWS

"A gorgeous, sorrowful and yet hopeful novel . . . Written mindfully and delicately in the voice of an early master, Tara White's second book is both a coming-of-age story and a story that desperately needs to be told. Combining a teenage, punk-rock need for acknowledgment and a nationwide need for attention, Where I Belong is a book that feels urgent and human."

—THE GLOBE AND MAIL

"White shares traditions and teachings without glamorizing Native culture. Ultimately, Carrie must learn to exist in both worlds . . . A welcome addition to any library, featuring a strong Native protagonist to whom most teens will easily relate."

—SCHOOL LIBRARY JOURNAL

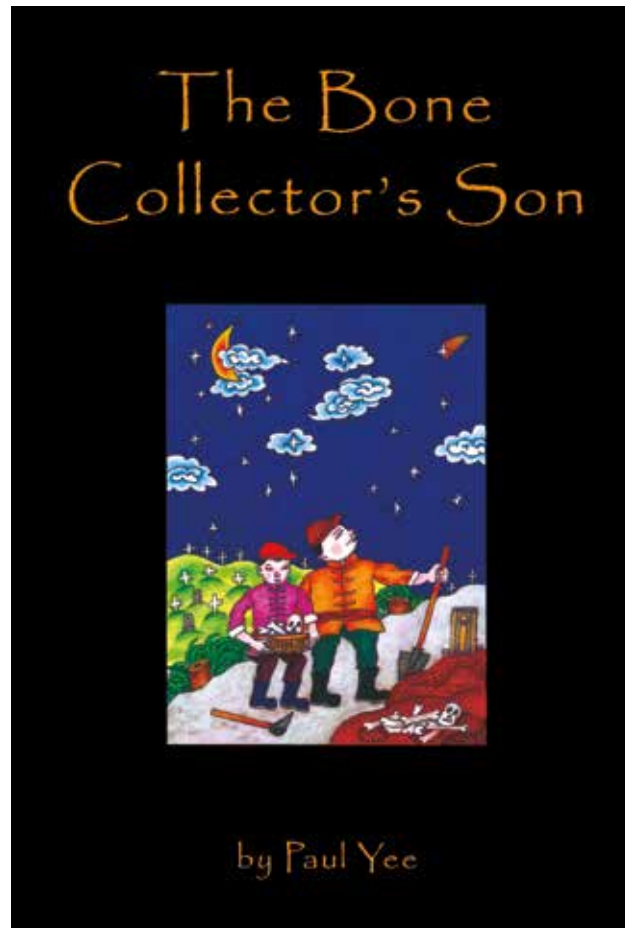

"White has created a convincing portrayal of a girl caught between two worlds struggling with identity. Carrie is a likeable character whom readers will be able to relate to on various levels. Her telling of the Oka Crisis in Quebec creates a wonderful learning opportunity for readers involving real-life events and issues . . . This is a story that needed to be told."

This ghost story is set in the year 1907 in Vancouver, British Columbia. Fourteen-year-old Bing-wing Chan resents his father, not only because the man gambles away all their money, but also because he now forces Bing to help him in his gruesome job. Ba is the bone collector, the one who digs up skeletons of deceased Chinese so that they can be sent home to China for permanent burial. Sinister things start happening soon after Bing accompanies his father to the graveyard.

Jackson Leong is haunted by ghosts—that of his brother and that of a mysterious young woman. The story is set after the earthquake of 1906 destroys most of San Francisco's Chinatown. The Secret Keepers provides a window into Chinese culture by Governor General's Award-winning author, Paul Yee.

REVIEWS

"The story is well-stocked with specters and misadventures."

—KIRKUS

"Set in the rich landscape of San Francisco's Chinatown in the early 1900s, the history and diverse culture of the Chinese-American population are vividly brought to life. The characters are complex, believable, and multi-layered and refuse to paint a stereotype of Chinese-Americans . . . Yee has created another rich North American/Chinese ghost story to thrill his readers."
